

The UK Government Acted Illegally:

- In issuing 'Regulations' beyond the scope of the Public Health Act
- In breaching Entrenched Acts of Parliament such as The Charter Confirmation Act and Bill of Rights
- In suspending Habeas Corpus and other natural rights enshrined in the Magna Carta and Declaration of Right.

The UK Government Acted Harmfully:

- Through legalising criminal negligence, in so denying families justice
- Through confining vulnerable people in effective solitary confinement
- Through preventing safe economic activity by healthy households
- Through preventing targetted herd immunity among healthy households
- Through introducing emergency powers which limit oversight of government
- Through reducing public exposure to sunlight and so overall health
- Through taking an opportunity-averse attitude to medicine access
- Through failing to reduce barriers to qualified doctors and others volunteering
- Through the continuing facilitation of cross border infection
- Through using flawed data and inaccurate methods of recording deaths
